

The Chinese

The Chinese population in Belize first began to arrive here to escape the Japanese invasion of China just before World War II.

Moving around the Central American republic, many of them settled in Belize. More recently, Taiwanese made their homes and established businesses in Belize as part of the economic citizenship program that was being offered by the Belizean government.